

Telluride Faculty Fellowship: Application for Fall 2012 and Winter 2013

Telluride House is a self-governing scholarship house for undergraduate and graduate students at the University of Michigan. It is a lively democratic community dedicated to intellectual inquiry, self-governance, and public service. For more information on the Telluride House, please visit www.telluride-house.org, and visit www.tellurideassociation.org to learn more about the Telluride Association.

At the Telluride House, Faculty Fellows live in suites that can easily accommodate spouses and children. As part of their fellowship, Faculty Fellows are required to give one hour-long academic talk per semester on a subject in their field. In addition, Faculty Fellows are encouraged to involve themselves in the intellectual and collegial life of the House. Past Fellows have enjoyed informal dinner conversations with students, worked on public service projects with housemembers, and implemented interactive initiatives such as workshops, film series, and reading groups.

This application is for the fall semester of 2012 and/or the winter semester of 2013. Fellows may move in during late August or early September, 2012 for fall term and early January 2013 for winter term. Requests for special accommodations will be considered.
